JOC Europe marches for Gender Equality, Brussels, 6th March, 2010

Today, 35 years after the direction of the European Union towards equality of remunerations, women are still today earning less than their male counterparts, in many cases up to 25% less. Here's what the European Commission's department of Employment, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities has to say:

"Across Europe women earn on average 17.8% less than men and in some countries the gender pay gap is widening." (Gender Pay Gap - EC Employment, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities)

This fact alone was enough to motivate militants from the movements of the JOC Walloon, CAJ Germany and our International YCW Coordinators to march together with around 5000 others on the streets of Brussels, on Saturday, 6th March, to celebrate and continue to demand the right to equality of millions of women workers dgfev online casino around the world for International Women's Day, 8th March.
